

Dear Sir or Madam:

This comment concerns the possibility of Low Power FM stations be given a priority over the national radio station K-LOVE. I want to voice my objection to such a possibility.

My family of four (two adults and two teenagers) listens to K-LOVE on a daily basis. We listen to K-LOVE even though we have many local radio stations to choose from. My teenagers like the contemporary music offered on K-LOVE, but unlike the local pop, rock, and country stations, K-LOVE does not air music with offensive lyrics. I know many families in the Gallup, N.M. community who listen to K-LOVE for the same reasons: the contemporary music is good, the station encourages positive messages, and the lyrics are clean.

If K-LOVE was taken off the air and replaced with a LPFM, I would be angry with the FCC, and I would probably stop listening to the radio; I would just replace the radio with CDs from my personal collection.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Hardin-Burrola
